The Deputy Minister had said that these plans would be available for use of School Districts where needed; and that the Organizer would at any time visit Chauvin, and confer with the Board, if desired. Mr. Code moved that the Secretary write the Department, asking that the Organizer of Consolidated Schools, may visit Chauvin, for the purpose of discussing with the Board the matter of a three room school. Secretary was instructed to obtain the necessary stationery and put notice in the paper to order that all promises and back-yards within the village limits be cleaned up before May 10th, and that in the event of it not being done, the village will order, where the progress is being made. It will be probably two years before the village structure is completed. The mayor never has been started. The town will be started this summer, at the tower itself will not be erected until next year. The tower will differ considerably from that destroyed in 1916, and a plan has been adopted more in keeping with the general architecture.

No plans have been made as to the formal plan of the structure. The Imperial Engineers will meet in Ottawa, 1920, and there is talk of having the ceremony until it is possible the Prince of Wales will visit Canada.

A half, and have to perform the ceremony. His grandfather, King Edward, when prince of Wales, laid the foundation of the old buildings in 1856. His uncle, the Duke of Connaught, laid the foundation stone of the new building.

LEALHOLME U.F.A.

The next meeting of the Lealholm U.F.A. will be held in the Prosperity School house at 8 p.m., Tuesday, May 5th.

PRAIRIE FIRE CASE SETTLED

BEFORE BEING HEARD

Action over the setting out of a prairie fire in the Prospect Valley district was settled before the setting of the court. The offending party acknowledging his offence and paying the costs.

SEPARATE SCHOOL QUESTION

The promoters of the proposed Separate School for Chauvin have made considerable progress with their plans for the organization of a separate school for Chauvin. A conference was held with the Minister of Education and in due course the various requirements of the Educational Act will be met. A meeting will be called at an early date.

CHAUVIN FAIR PRIZE LIST

NOW BEING PREPARED

The Secretary and the directors of the Chauvin Agricultural Society are now engaged on the task of preparing the prize list for the annual fair. Any offer of special prizes will be thankfully received. Intending advertisers are asked to prepare copy for their advertisements. The new regulations require that the lists must be in circulation for six weeks before the day of the fair. There is, therefore, but little time to spare.

CHICKS HATCHING WELL

Mr. P. O'Brien informs us that the chicks are coming out in great shape this year. Unlike last year, when such a large proportion had to be culled out of their shells, the chicks are full of vigor and can help themselves. There are now a number of broods running around in good shape.

DETAILED VALUATION

OF ALL FARM LANDS

There is to be a detailed valuation of all farm lands in Alberta this summer in preparation for an assessment of the 1920 supplementary tax and work will be done under the direction of the department of municipal affairs and will be taken up concurrently with the collection of this year's tax and 1918 arrears. For the present year's taxation the old system will be continued, with possibly a revision in some cases of the rates in local units, run from two to four cents per acre. Beginning with next year, however, all land to be assessed on a valuation basis.

An equalization board will be appointed to equalize the values as between the municipalities so the uniform procedure may be taken throughout the province. The valuations made by rural municipalities, except for possible equalizations of this kind, will be accepted by the government, which will therefore be concerned mostly with the lands lying out of the municipalities.
When the valuations have been completed the rate for the 1920 tax will be set, and notices will be sent out accordingly.

WELCOME HOME TO OUR BOYS

It is fitting that the welcome home to Chauvin from the front, Sgt. E. Pitman and Grant Saul They arrived home last Thursday, after having got their discharge from service.

Harold Black has also returned to Chauvin.

MINISTER OF EDUCATION

PRaises CHAUVIN SCHOOLS

John Ross Deputy Minister of Education paid a visit to Chauvin on Thursday on business connected with his department. While here he visited our schools and expressed appreciation of the work being done. He was particularly pleased with the high school department and hoped that with the new increased grants to high schools, the school would become a centre of higher education in the near future.

In consultation with the public board, Mr. Ross gave an outline of recent legislation and also gave some very useful hints and pointers with reference to the details of the proposed new public school.

ARTLAND NOTES

Mrs Arthur Ross and family have returned from a trip to Weymouth.

Mrs and Mrs John Graham, of the Leithburn farm, returned Thursday evening and report a hopeful outlook for this seasons crop in the neighbourhood.

It seems to early to mention any possibilities about this year's operations,

but we presume that the few showers

we have recently enjoyed, inspire rosy hopes.

It is with great pleasure that we record our enthusiastic appeal in the 'Artland Notes' in our last issue. We refer to the Special, on the 24th of April at the Brady school, in aid of that organization, the Returned Soldiers' Fund.

A big and jovial crowd will, we hope respond. They can bank on a fine time.

In saying this we are all the more conscious of the fact that the programme is one of the most important of a

'Smelling Contest'.

A visitor from the Atlas Elevator firm, who has been taking in the merry ties of Artland, incidentally hoping also to do some business, has been very much surprised to find a number of carpenters scrambling over the rapidly rising pepper box of an elevator.

Behold however but a typical Artland hilarity scene—no laughing in the merry men—the trifling little item of lumber

having been forgotten! 'Such is life' and the Atlas one, wending to home.

In the fierce tornado that swept over Brady school on the 3rd April, it was most cheerful to note that a slender gleam of humour for a moment retrieved the gloom of the situation—as the following incident shows:

'There was a certain lady at the Brady meeting to whom a rattlepatey remarked—as he handed her a pair of

APRIL AND MAY IN THE GARDEN

April

Make sowing of peas and spinach early. Then every two weeks.

Plant beets, cabbages, carrots, lettuce, leeks, parsnips, parsley, potatoes, radishes, snail, celery, Swiss chard.

Lima beans, cucumbers, musk melons, peppers, and squashes may be started in cold frames for early crops. It is best to use paper pots. Begin planting gladioli late in the month.

May

Cultivate all crops as soon as up to keep weeds from starting. Transplant celery at least once to keep tap roots short.

All the tender vegetables like cucumbers, melons, and squashes may be planted after danger of frost is passed.

Lima beans may be planted in soil now, especially rich.

Sow peas, beans, beets, and carrots for a succession.

Start planting corn and continue every ten days.

Set out tomato plants by the middle of the month, or soon after. Cover with light, cloth-covered frames or papers if frost threatens.

Prune shrubs after they bloom. The main thing is to get rid of dead and weak wood. Cut at the bottom. Nothing is accomplished by clipping off the ends.

Late May is none too early to begin planting perennial plants to make plants for the next season. Many kinds are best started in a cold frame.

Plant dahlias and cannas late in the month after dividing the clumps. Continue to plant gladioli bulbs.

PLANT PERMANENT

PERENNIAL GARDEN

This is the season to sow hardy perennial seeds. Infinitely better results follow sowing during this month than by delaying until midsummer, and better still, the majority of the plants will flower during the late summer and fall. All flower borders should be liberally furnished with old-fashioned hardy plants; in fact, they should form the foundation, as it were, around which we may use annuals, bulbous and other plants.

A few of the best hardy perennial flowers to sow now should include coreopsis, Shasta daisy, delphinium, gillardia, lynchis, and valerian. The seeds will germinate quickly at this season, but so very thin and transplant to wherever the plants will be most effective. Those named will all bloom later in the season, but they will be at their best the following year.

Dahlias, of course, should find a home in all borders where there is available room to allow plants to develop properly. In cold locations roots must not be set out until early in May and allow at least three to four feet between each plant.

Stationery and school supplies including a very dainty line of pads and paperettes; seventy-two page scribblers, ruled at six for a quarter or merely 4 c. each, this price could not be beaten before the war.

Eagle compasses, water color paints, rulers, pencils, ink pens, slates, erasers, drawing books, drawing pads, books for all grades.

boxing gloves, and pulled off his cap. "Knock out my brains" to which the lady responded "You had better turn up the soles of your feet."

In thanking our contributor for his story, we frankly confess to not being able altogether to seize the point of the joke. We take this opportunity, however, of expressing the hope, that if the people who read these delightful meetings, and of the above example of what we do not, intended to be an exquisite preparation, then there is also hope that they will exercise the power of restoring the old-time harmony in what may now not inaptly be described as the "storm centre" of the district.

We understand that Mr Maclean, K. the leader of the opposition in the Regina Legislature, proposes to question the Attorney General in the House, as to the precise reasons that formed the basis for Mr Dodd's recommendation that Messrs Wright and Jukes be placed upon the retired list of the Commissioners of the Peace.

It is to be hoped that some considerable attention will be bestowed upon that north "main highway" leading out of Artland station to Manitou district and points beyond. When the road bulletin issued by Mr Latza, Saskatchewan minister of highways, comes up for serious study by the Manitou Lake Municipal Council.

It is expected that in the suit of Wright versus Marquard (on appeal) judgement will be given on or about the 30th instant.

We are glad to greet Mr Swarbrick as he recently passed through from Scott to Nardden, but regret to learn that Mrs Swarbrick is still in a very poor health.

A correspondent writes as follows:—Being as last years crop was a complete failure we see that the Canadian Bank of Commerce has turned one of their banks out to pasture with a three strand barbed wire fence around it. It is rather a "huge boyen," we fear it will be rather hard on the pasture north of the Lake, but we are told that Howard Cayford has volunteered to put up a large stock of hay to winter it."

All we can add is "One volunteer is worth many 'pressed' men, but will the volunteer press the hay?"

Letters to the Editor.

Editor Chauvin Chronicle.

Dear Sir:—In a recent issue of your paper there was a somewhat vague account of what proved to be an important meeting of the members of the Brady School District. When looking for report of the meeting the "Hunter for news" certainly must have been "some hunter" if the published account was all he was able to get.

The minutes of the meeting would take up too much space in your paper and would also disclose facts that it might be best to try and forget.

But there is one thing that stands out very plainly, and that is the control one man can hold over others of weaker mentality. On the day of the meeting it was amusing to see a small band of men who had all been given their lesson by their leader, until they could almost say it backward.

How much the lesson amounted to when the men came under the rapid fire questions, of the ratepayers is common knowledge.

The climax though was reached when the leader of the little party

"went over the top" his objective being the Sec. of the meeting, owing to the heavy strain that the small party had been under the leader in his attack did not get the looked for reinforcements, hence the attack fizzled out.

It might interest some to know that quite a few complaints have gone into the Department of Education and that it has been suggested to them that in case of an investigation it would be as well for the investigator to take out a life policy in some reliable company, and also if he investigates in person he had better come fully armed, for it is a terror to be attacked by a school teacher.

AN IRISHMAN'S LUCK

youngsters, in thirty years time or less your boys and girls will be singing "The Maple Leaf" and be proud to call themselves the children of the land where the maple grows.

"Time," did you say, Mickey Dunoon, you young villan—to hold me up—time it is—up on your feet, all of you, and get hold of the tune, Peter McTavish, and let her go for "God Save the Queen."

Never was the national anthem honored by a more vigorous and enthusiastic redering, and on its close, at a word from Evelyn, the children trooped out of school, while the grown-ups thronged round the doctor with thanks for his address for to more than one it had brought back memories of their own childhood and of the stories of the old land which they had listened to at their mothers' knees. The doctor himself became gruff and abrupt in his manner, for he was half ashamed of the under-current of feeling that had betrayed his more emotional side, and hastened out to his buggy under the plea that he had a patient waiting for him in town and he must start at once.

"I tell you what it is, Jim," he confided to Mr. Hardie, as the latter untied the doctor's horse and handed him the reins, "I'm getting an old man now, Jim, but the Old Land lies nearer my heart than to at their mothers' knees. I can never see it again—than it did when I left it so many long years ago—so, Jim—I'm a confounded old fool, and with a sharp jerk of the reins and a nervous flick of the whip the Doctor drove away.

CHAPTER IX

How Tom Dennis Kept The Score

The Queen's Birthday ended as happily at the Dingle as it had begun, and the Dennis family were very "howling success" for her—described it as being to her mother in her final summing up of the happiness of the day before going to bed. In addition to Chris Raye and the Dennises who had been friends two young Englishmen—old Dingle pupils—came over incidentally early in the afternoon, and although there were only the three girls, the boys behaved—Daisy's verdict again—in a way that was perfectly lovely, and insisted on playing "mixed doubles" till the girls went off to set the table in the shade of the black poplar bluff at the back of the house. Then indeed, they made up for the first of the day by some vigorous "singles" till Daisy came to call them to tea, very hot, very hungry, and still more thirsty—for the big crock of iced lemonade had been exhausted by the middle of the afternoon. Here they were joined by Mr. and Mrs. Enderby, the latter in a tussore silk gown trimmed with real lace—a carefully preserved relic of long past days, and reserved for such rare summer festivities as the present.

Mr. Enderby, who had been too long in the West to make many concessions to society in the matter of dress, had submitted so far to his wife's prejudices as to discard his working vest in favor of his brown suit and a white collar, but he was not a particularly warm day he might be allowed to dispense with his coat—as a set-off to the white flannels of the young men. It was a happy party, all of them, and innocent chaff and repartee—no party could be very sedate that numbered Daisy among its members, and Daisy was on as easy terms with all the young men, except Chris Raye, as if they were her brothers—and Daisy's easy terms were very easy and very harmless. None of the "Dingle" boys, as the former pupils were usually called, ever thought of flirting with Daisy, because flirting implies the presence of some modicum at least of sentiment in the person flirted with, and there was not a scrap of sentimentality in Daisy's nature. She described herself, and behaved and expected to be accepted as, "one of the boys," and the boys accepted her on that footing.

They lingered a long time round the table after tea was actually over, for as it was in the open air the boys had a dispensation to light their pipes or cigarettes, but on a Western farm work can never be postponed beyond a certain limit. Mr. Enderby had slipped away quietly some time before to bring the cows in from the pasture, and on his return there was a general break-up and leave taking. The two young Englishmen had already gone, and the Dennises and Chris Raye were sitting on the veranda step taking off their tennis shoes when Daisy had a swift intuition of the possibilities.

"There's a good half hour of light left yet—it's a shame to waste it—Mr. Chris, I'll play you a set of singles, and Evelyn shall come and see you play fair—do now."

"I'm sure I should be very glad," said Chris hesitatingly, "only perhaps Mr. Hardie will be expecting me back to help."

"Oh, no, I'm sure he won't," said Daisy decidedly, "besides, you left your rig down there, didn't you, Jack, well, suppose you go down and tell Mr. Hardie that Mr. Raye is just finishing a set—and then you can come up for Tom, and you can take Mr. Chris down the lane in your 'luck-board'—you see?"

"You shall make a great general," Daisy said to Tom Dennis, laughing, "you shall win your set, and I'll come down to the court and keep score for you."

"Yes, now how glad I am,

Mr. Dennis, to see my brother taking so kindly to the West," said Evelyn a few minutes later, as she and Tom were seated on the rustic seat by the side of the court, "though he was very anxious to come out, I was afraid he would not like the life when he found out how different it was to our life at home, but he seems to be perfectly contented."

"Well, you see, he is more fortunate than a lot of young fellows; it's not often you find a fine little man like Jim Hardie to work for, and then the people at the "Dingle" are always so round, and we haven't all got a sister here who knows just what we really are and to take an interest in keeping us civilized."

"Oh, I don't think Chris needs that, but he is rather shy and reserved—collecting something—butterflies, beetles or fossils, and his room at home was a perfect museum of specimens, from a stuffed owl to the tooth of an antediluvian lizard."

"Well, I don't fancy Mrs. Hardie would approve of his musing up the house with anything of that kind—still, Jim has a great admiration for "learning" of all kinds, and though he probably would be secretly anxious at any one "fussing with the likes" of beetles or weeds—except to destroy them for the good of the farm, still he would never be contemptuous about it. Jim Hardie, though he is a slave to work himself, is not a mere money grubber like so many of the men here are."

"Oh, he and Chris get along splendidly; Chris is very anxious to learn, and very particular about doing things properly, and he really takes an interest in the calves and pigs and hens and things like that, and he helps Mrs. Hardie in the garden."

"Well, if he makes a friend of Mrs. Hardie he will have a good enough time—he is rather suspicious of English people and on the lookout for "airs," and she objects to muddy boots on her clean floor, or novels or papers lying round on Sunday—Jim's Free Press being exempted—if he is careful about a few little things of that kind he will be a very good fellow, and keeps out of her way on washing day, why he'll be all right—and he mustn't talk too appreciatively of the Dingle and Daisy Enderby."

Why Daisy, Mr. Dennis, I'm sure she is unconventional enough—

CHAUVIN AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY COLUMN

We are glad to note the increased interest in the Chauvin Agricultural Society and its doings.

To be successful an agricultural Society should be the leading force in a rural community.

It should seek to interest the young as well as the adults not only in a farming sense but in the social line also. It should be in the district what the Experimental Farms and Depts of Agriculture of Provinces are to their particular Province. It should seek to impart the best of farming methods and encourage the betterment of live stock. The young folk should not be neglected for there are the farmers of tomorrow and they should be encouraged and helped along all the lines pertaining to Agriculture.

It is with this object in view that the Chauvin Agricultural Society has invoked the assistance of our local Press. Our Editor, with the interest of the community at heart has generously granted us space to be used for the purpose of arousing both the interest and the sympathies of the inhabitants of this district in the Society and all it stands for. Every local farmer should be a member of the Agricultural Society for it is only by their co-operation that the Society can be made a success.

This week we would draw attention to one of the lessons of the past dry seasons, viz. the use of the drag harrow. It is only by conserving every drop of moisture possible and by germination and destruction of weeds, that we can hope to be able to raise grain in these dry years. Land should be harrowed immediately it is plowed. For this purpose what is better than a drag harrow attached to the plow. They can be bought for a small sum. The extra draft is almost negligible.

This little implement levels and pulverizes and packs the land immediately after the plow. Not tomorrow or next week but at the time it is plowed. It is a great asset on an extra horse draught. The section of harrows. This however is hard on the horse as it has to walk on the plowing whereas if the attachment is on the plow there is no need to put a horse on the plowing.

We have heard an objection to this attachment that it makes the weeds grow. Is not this one of the main reasons why we summer fallow? Surely such an objection is on a par with the man who bored holes in the floor of his barn to let the liquid manure escape.

Take also the time saved in spring plowing with the harrow attachment on the plow. Is not that worth the while? We should like to see more farmers in this district using this little implement. Our own experience is that we would not be without it.

Mr. Andy Warsaw had his stable and one horse, a cow and calf burnt besides all his harness; another horse was badly burned about the neck and shoulders.
The stable of Mr. Herbert Graham was also destroyed.

The purpose of this advertisement is to create a better and clearer understanding between this paper and its ever increasing number of readers

$7000 AT YOUR SERVICE

The preparation of an up-to-date newspaper is a mystery to the average reader; and is, in fact, one of the greatest of the many modern marvels. The use of machinery has displaced the old original hand-set types, and modern presses reel off their giant editions at the rate of 30,000 copies per hour. The ordinary visitor to a modern office may see much that it would take him years to understand—and by that time never machinery would likely have taken its place. Obviously, the smaller local papers have nothing approaching the city papers in their offices, nor can they hasten out several thirty page editions daily

FROM $750 TO $7000

It is by long continued effort that the smaller newspapers can develop into more useful organs. The Chauvin Chronicle started in 1914 with an outfit valued $750; during the five years it has been constantly adding equipment, and at the present date has the best equipment of any local newspaper office located between Edmonton and Saskatoon.—The $750 investment has grown to one of $7000.

The employment of this large amount of capital is the only method by which it has been possible under conditions of labor and material prices to so improve our publication that we are now giving our readers as much reading matter in one week now, as we used to give in eight weeks. The Chauvin Chronicle now contains more home printed matter, each week than any other local newspaper in the above named territory.

MONEY CAN'T DO THE WHOLE THING

All newspapers must depend upon the readers for their success, and especially a local publication. We must depend upon our readers for our success. When you have paid your $1.50 for the paper, you have helped some—but please do not entertain the idea that your $1.50 will meet the cost of production because it does not begin to. Nor do we at the present feel that our readers would be willing to pay a much greater amount. We are therefore compelled to ask services of our readers, such as bringing in notes of the news of their own district. By doing this you will not only reduce the cost of production of our paper, but your own district will receive a corresponding advantage by reason of the increased interest taken in its affairs.—This is just co-operation for mutual gain

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Sunday, May 4th 1915: Man Made
In The Image of God: Genesis 1:
26-28; 2: 7-9. Ephesians 4: 20-24

We can easily remember when we used to take our toys apart to see the works. The desire to get at the bottom of things continues. Genesis takes us back to see the beginning of the world and man, as God had made this known in the traditions of the Hebrew people. In this a living person is active to whom man alone is kin.

GOLDEN TEXT—God created man in His own image.—Genesis 1: 27.

THE BLUE JACKAL

A jackal, prowling round a town one night, fell into an indigo tank, and came out dyed blue.
"No one will know me now that I am this splendid colour," said he. "so I will pretend that I am the king of all the beasts".

He began by ruling over all the jackals, and then the lions and tigers submitted to him. This made him proud and insolent, and he no longer took any notice of his jackal friends. One night they gathered round the self-made king and natural to howl, and so soon as the blue jackal heard the others yelling, his natural instinct led him to do the same, and all at once all the other creatures in the jungle knew him to be nothing better than a jackal, and he lost for ever his crown.

Silence is sometimes golden.

Why is a crocodile not to be trusted?
Because he so easily takes you in.

MARGIES WISH

I wish there was some wonderful place
Called the Land of Beginning Again:
Where all our mistakes
And all our heartaches,
And all our poor selfish grief,
Could be dropped, like an old shabby coat at the door,
And never put on again.
For what had seemed hardest we'd know had been best,
And what had seemed loss would be gain:

For there isn't a thing
That will not take wing
When we've faced it and laughed it away.
And I think that the laughter is most
What we're after
In the Land of Beginning Again.

Margaret E. Lake.

Why is a new born baby like a farthing's worth of sugar?
Because it is precious little.

Why should you never take notice of a lame beggar?
Because he always asks for alms (arms) when he really requires legs.

Why is it not advisable for you to do your aunt a good turn?
Because it is quite impossible for you to be her niece and a sister (assist her), too.

What is the difference between your iron-monger and your shoe-maker?
One sold the nails and the other nailed the soles.

Which tree is very much like a donkey?
Why, yew (you) of course.

Why is a forgotten riddle like a drawn tooth?
Because it has gone clean out of your head.

GOPHER KILLING COMPETITION IN SASKATCHEWAN

The League News, the official organ of the Junior Agricultural Service League, published by the Weeds and Seed Branch of the Department of Agriculture, in announcing the Gopher Competition for 1915, states that this bids fair to result almost in the extermination of the pest, if the list of prizes being offered is an indication of what the children will accomplish. These aggregate $3,000 in value. In the 1917 competition Saskatchewan school children—2,250,000 sophomores, in 1918 they got 14,000; this year they are bound to pass the million mark.

The competition will open when the first gopher comes out and will continue up to Gopher Day, the twenty-fourth of May. All Saskatchewan children up to eighteen years of age are allowed to enter the contest. Those wishing to do so should see their school teacher without delay, who will enter their names. The province is divided into thirty-six districts with two classes of schools in each district, those with an enrolment of eighteen and over, and those with an enrolment of less than eighteen. There is a grand prize for the highest school in the province in each class, prizes for the highest school in each district, first and second prizes in each for the individual contestants, and additional grand prizes varying from a University scholarship worth $100 to watches, Victory Bonds, etc. The full list of prizes, rules and regulations, will appear in the next number of "The League News" or may be obtained from the Weeds and Seed Commissioner, Department of Agriculture, Regina.

OUR LITTLE ADS DO BIG WORK

WHERE WILL THE REVENUE COME FROM

their expenditures and consequently increase the deficit.

At the very moment when Canada is struggling with this problem the Western Grain Growers come forth with insatiable demands for:

(1) "An immediate and substantial all-round reduction of the customs tariff."
(2) Free trade with Great Britain inside of five years.

(3) Rediprocity now, and free trade later, with the United States.

These demands are apparently made in the hope and belief that, if they are granted, those making them will be relieved of a large part of what they call the "Burden of Taxation" which the tariff imposes upon the m. That expectation can only be realized if the revenue raised by means of the tariff is substantially reduced. They may argue that under a lower tariff the volume of goods imported will increase, and consequently there will be no decrease in the revenue. But, matters of this kind—the duty removed entirely from implements, lumber, cement, oil and other articles of which they are large consumers. If the revenue is to be maintained under such a rearrangement of the tariff schedules, other classes of the people must pay what the Grain Growers will escape.

How do the Grain Growers propose to provide for the shortage this year and the further year? The loss of revenue which will be inevitable if their demands are granted?

They ask the Dominion Government to impose the following taxes:—A direct tax on unimproved land values and natural resources, increased taxation on personal incomes, increased inheritance taxes and increased taxation on corporations.

As to taxing increased increment as such, the objection, but it must be remembered that vacant land now pays taxes to the Municipalities and, in some Provinces, additional taxes to the Provincial Government. Income taxes are now imposed by individuals to the Municipalities and also to the Dominion Government. Inheritance taxes are now imposed by all the Provinces, ranging in Ontario, for example from one to twenty per cent. Corporations are now taxed as persons by Municipal Governments, Provincial Governments and the Dominion Government, and also pay special taxes to every Province for the privilege of being corporations.

Does anyone believe that the forms of taxation advocated by the Grain Growers can be increased sufficiently this year to obtain the revenue which would be lost by tariff reduction, and also to meet the huge deficit without crippling industry, stifling business and throwing thousands of workers out of employment?

The United States has all the forms of taxation advocated by the Grain Growers, but still finds it necessary to maintain its customs tariff, which is about equal to our own.

If the Grain Growers are to escape almost all taxation, including the great increase caused by war, what will happen to the people who will be driven out of business through having to pay not only their own taxes but also those of the Grain Growers? Will they try to grow grain? It is more likely that they will go to the United States to get work, as other Canadians went fifty years ago, and leave a population chiefly farmers, ever growing smaller, to bear all the taxes, ever growing greater.

Again we ask, Where will the Revenue come from?

Which is Cheaper?

You will admit that a tire at $30 that runs 10,000 miles is cheaper than a tire at $24 that only runs 6,000 miles

The $30 tire costs only .003c. per mile while the $24 costs .004c. per mile.

Yet, because the first cost is lower, you will be offered tires that give only 60 per cent or so of the service better tires render.

It's clear that it would be poor economy for you to buy such tires. Your cost per mile would be far too high.

While not a high-priced tire, in fact cheaper than some, the Goodyear Tire has the reputation of giving unusually good service. The average mileage of Goodyear Tires is probably the highest of any.

This is the tire we prefer to pin our reputation to and the tire we recommend unreservedly to you.

We invite you to call and get facts on the service Goodyear Tires are giving.

AN IRISHMAN'S LUCK

Chapter VIII
Western Locality

Besides a crowd of boys and girls, a considerable number of grown-ups were already gathered round the old log schoolhouse, four or five mothers pupils who were to take a part in the patriotic exercises, and one or two noisy fellows who had heard that Doctor Casey was to address the children. There, too, was Jim Hardie, in his capacity as trustee, happy to be among a parcel of children, and secure under a promise from Evelyn that he should not be asked as chairman to do more than announce the "pieces" on the program.

After a few minutes spent by the 'grown-ups' in mutual greetings, a small boy, specially honored for his clean hands and face and smoothly brushed hair, rang the school bell, and the children marched in, led by school and quietly took their seats at their desks, while Doctor Casey and Jim Hardie were escorted to chairs placed on the little platform at the end of the room.

In spite of Mrs. Enderby's prophecies of the unruliness of the children, Evelyn had them all ready under excellent control, though they were evidently looking forward keenly to their own part in the entertainment, for Manitoba children have a most unashamed love of taking part in any kind of public "show," and would sing their school songs or say their "pieces" before the assembled royalty of Europe with a perfect absence of self-consciousness ad to their own entire satisfaction.

First on the programme came 'Rule, Britannia,' sung by the whole school, without any musical accompaniment of course, or copies of the words, and very well sung indeed. Some of the big boys' voices at the back were rather cracked, and the piping treble of the little girls rather shrill, but the immense enthusiasm with which they set themselves to it at the chorus more than atoned for any musical defects. The fusion of races which is taking place in the West is producing a more demonstrative type of patriotism than the same spirit was noticeable in the various 'pieces' and patriotic songs which followed—love to Manitoba, love to Canada, and above all and beyond these, love and loyalty to the Empire and to the Old Mother of Nations across the seas—this was the keynote of the whole.

At last, with much good-natured applause from the 'grown-ups' ad honest appreciation by the children themselves of their own efforts, the climax of their anticipations was reached when Jim Hardie announced 'An address by our old friend, Doctor Casey. Now boys and girls mind what the Doctor tells you.'

A general clapping of hands, in which the 'grown-ups' joined, was followed by a hush as Doctor Casey rose and came to the centre of the little platform facing the children. Doctor Casey was an Irishman with some thirty years or more of Eastern and Western Canada added to twenty-five of the 'Old Country,' and it did not re-county' meant in his case. For twenty years or so he had shared the changing fortunes of Minnesota and the Minnesota Country, and most of the sea of eager faces in front of him had been familiar to him from their earliest infancy. The stiffness of the medical man had been rubbed off in Manitoba country practice—he knew and loved children, and the children, in spite of a little eye inspired by his deep-set eyes and bushy eyebrows—the children knew it. He began his address in the offhand and casual way that will hold a Western audience, whether of children or adults, but a real purpose lay behind it all—a real purpose to promote the unity of the Empire, and though it was only expressed in a half-and, half-humorous tone now and again, there was not one of the 'grown-ups' who did not realize that with him the old Valentin motto held true, and that he sent only made the heart grow fonder.

'Well, girls and boys,' the Doctor began after a formal bow to Evelyn, 'well, boys and girls, we should all be a great deal better in the fresh air and sunshine outside instead of being cooped up like a bunch of half-weaned calves in a corral, in this little school-house—however, it won't last long, ten minutes will see me through, and then it's 'God Save the Queen,' and out—' applause from two or three little boys for the suggestion of the ten-minute limit to his address, which applause proved to be premature. 'I'm to talk to you about Old Country folk and Canadians, and why ehly should love one another—for you know the Old Country boys stand rather aloof from the Canadian boys and are "rather English, you know," and the Canadian boys are not quite kind in their remarks about "green" Englishmen, who were not born with a wax of gum in their mouths and an axe in their hands.' Half a dozen sets of jaws that were previously grinding monotonously on the forbidden gum grew instantly rigid.

'Well, what's the difference between Old Country and Canadian boys, like this—all of you except the little tots know the old shed at the back of Pat Cassidy's store in town,' when I first went to Minnesota it stood on the north side of the river, and Pat kept his first store in it, and it was painted white—ten years ago he moved it to on the main street and fixed it up and he painted it grey—the year before last he built his new brick block and put the old shop at the back for a warehouse and painted it brown. If Johnnie Jones here were to go to the old shed and to take his Jack-knife—the one he is cutting his desk with now—(unhappy self-consciousness on the part of Johnnie, who finds himself the centre of attention for some fifty eyes)—' and were to scrape away a piece of brown paint very carefully, would he come to? Chorus of small voices, 'The grey paint, sir.'

'And then if he scraped away the grey?'
Renewed chorus, 'The white paint, sir.'
'That's right, children, and if he scraped away the white he would come to the lumber, and it's good, sound lumber, too, that lies hidden under the white and the grey and the brown.'
'Old Countrymen' and CCanadians—at the bottom of them all. Here's Micky Dunoon, born and bred and myself that gave him his call name—'he's a Manitoban, that's his brown coat of paint, let us scratch a bit of it off here on the cheek of him' (pan-rather nervous), 'why here's the Old Ontario maple syrup running out, and that is his grey coat of paint, and what have we got under that again? We will chip off a wee bit more Micky ad it's old Ireland we've come to, and sure Micky Dunoon, when you get the Manitoba paint and the Ontario paint off him, is a "green" Irishman after all.'

'Now look at little Pete M'Tavish—what are you, Pete?'

'Please, Doctor Casey, I'm a Canadian.'
'Of course you are, Pete, weren't you born at the old farm house down the valley yonder—but what's under the freckles on your nose, Pete? (More pantomime.) 'Why, boys and girls, would you believe it? It's blue underneath; he's a blue-nose' from Nova Scotia, and what have we underneath that? Why, there's a few porridge and some oatcakes—and listen—far away I hear a little boy singing, and I believe it's Pete's grand father's voice, and he's singing about "Far Lochaber," and his pants hardly come to his knees, and it's a compiment to call them pants at all, and I do believe himself is a Highlander. Don't you laugh at new Scotchmen, Pete, or you will be making fun of a strap at the farm-house down the valley, Pete, and it's cut into tails in the old-fashioned way and applied in the old-fashioned spilt, and it goes by the old-fashioned name and the marks of the taws will remind you, Pete, of what is under your coats of paint.'

'That who is that bullet-headed little chap next to you, Micky Dunoon? Billy Styles—and what do you call yourself, Billy? A Manitoban? That's you every time, Sonnie, but there is something else under that brown cheek of yours—why here are rocks and trout-streams and the spruce and the tamarac and a little log house in a clearing and we've come to Muskoka,—and we must go allude deeper Billy, ah, here we come to the making of you—there's the red and the white and the blue, Billy, and we call it the "Old Flag," Billy, and there's a dog sitting down by the side of it, and he's a good ble like yourself in the build of him, Billy, he's short in the leg and stiff in the back and he's not much of a tyke to bark, but he has a little growl of his own—what does he say when he growls? He says what we have, we hold, Billy, and you'd better take his word for it.'

'You're a Manitoban, Billy, true enough, but you are just a chip of some fine old English blocks just the same, and as I listen to this side of you, Billy, your father's side, I hear an old song of the sea, and I see a frank-eyed sailor lad hanging to the tiller of a North Sea fishing-boat, and your father called him father in the long-off days before you were born, Billy. Again I listen to the other side of you, Billy, your mother's side, and I hear the snatch of a West Country ballad, and the cattle are coming home down a Somersetshire lane, and the tune of the song is the same that sings your baby sister to sleep in the stone house built by the Rolling River, and the cradle song of old Somerset, fifty years ago, is the cradle song of new Manitoba today, and you are a little English bull-dog, Billy, after all.'

'Why, boys and girls, what have I done with my ten minutes—gone? I should say so—only remember you Canadian boys and girls, you were English and Irish and Scotch fifty years ago, and you you Old Country

RED CROSS WORK

The following letter has been handed in to the Chauvin Chronicle by an officer of the Chauvin Womens Institute, with a request for its publication. We have much pleasure in acceding with the request—Editor.

Chauvin, Alta April 2nd, 1919
To the Officers and Members of the Womens Institute, Chauvin, Alta.

Ladies:—
The ladies of the Chauvin Red Cross Auxiliary feel very much as if they were duplicating the work of the Womens Institute to a certain extent they feel that it would be a great saving of time if the amalgamation of the two societies took place, especially as the necessity of the work for the Red Cross is likely to be very much reduced in the near future. We would suggest that the Womens Institute take over the work which the Red Cross Auxiliary has been doing in the past, as we feel that one better work and be of more service to the community and the co-operation of all concerned would result in more efficient and harmonious work being done.

If the amalgamation meets with the approval of the Womens Institute the Red Cross would transfer all their working materials consisting of:—

6 pairs bed socks, 1 sample bed sock, 1 pair pyjamas, 1 nurse apron, 3 pairs slippers, 1 sample slipper, 2 M.T. handkerchiefs, 2 bath robes, 1 sheet, 1 sling, as this is work which has got to be completed and would also transfer the following assets for the sum of $25.00 for the Red Cross Fund:—

240 paper plates, 117 cups, 1 dozen and 10 knives, 17 forks, 84 yards new oilcloth, lamp and fittings, wagon.

Also, we would suggest that a committee of, say five ladies, be appointed whose special duties would be to look after Red Cross work.

Respectfully submitted,

Mrs. H. G. POLKINS,

Mrs. S. FORRYAN,

Mrs. N. T. PARCELS,

MOLLIE B. RODDEN,

Chauvin Red Cross Auxiliary No. 588.
